

Sustainability.

Cannon Equipment and IMI Merchandising are focused on responsible business practices, also known as corporate sustainability, as evidenced by the recent entry of IMI as a member of the 2009 Dow Jones STOXX Sustainability Index (DJSI). The index is based on a rigorous assessment process and admits only those businesses that achieve top 20% scores on demanding sustainability criteria.

IMI has focused its attention on four key responsible business priorities: health and safety; supporting customers' responsible business priorities; supply chain risks; and energy efficiency opportunities, and is making significant progress in all of these areas. IMI is one of only four in our sector in the U.S. to get this top rating (the other three are Cummins, Ingersoll Rand and Caterpillar).

At Cannon Equipment, we believe that corporate sustainability is a very important part of who we are as a company. We are always searching for new technologies and innovative processes to help us provide industry leading solutions to our customers, while remaining environmentally focused and responsible.
